MR. BRYAN is evidently finding the

Mr. Brvan is evidently finding the anti-Expansion proposition an unpopular one. He is hedging. He is reported by the Associated Press in an interview in Minneapolis:

"I am a firm believer in the enlargement and extension of the limits of the Republic. I don't mean by that the extension by the addition of contiguous territory nor to limit myself to that. Wheever there is a people intelligent enough to form a part of the Republic it is my belief that they should be taken in."

This knocks the bottom out of the proposition to make BRYAN and anti-Expansion the chief features of the Democratic campaign for 1900.

Now is the time for the impetious Kentuekian to sit down without flinching on his deep-seated military instincts. War is very attractive from a distance, but once in it, the novelty soon wears off. A venerable Kentuckian whose son was spoiling to get into the fight at Santiago, quietly re-marked, "My son, when a Mauser bullet whistles past your noggin, you will be more calmer." The old man had sized up the situation during the Civil War.

Now, if we are going to have war, who is going to be bettered by it? Certainly not the man of business, nor the plain citizen who is hustling for a livelihood, nor any honest, hardworking Kentuckian who is making working Kentuckian who is making provision for the day when he cannot know. No; this is an office-seekers' war. Eliminate that active and industrious element from the polities of Kentucky, and the old Commonwealth will be commonwealth will sense. No thoroughored Refluctian is going to be seared by talk.

It sometimes helps one to take an invotated "view. The looker-on sees more of the game than the man that is in it. The subjoined paragraph from The Memphis Appeal (Demoratic) is convincing proof that we do not exaggerate the critical character of the situation at this time. "It is not likely," says The Appeal, "that this will be the end of turmoil in our neighbor state. Assassination seldom tranquillizes the public mind. It ordinarily adds but fuel to the flames. Kentucky has been on the brink of revolution for several weeks, and it is very doubtful whether the shooting of Gonnat. will quench the fires. Indeed it will be a miracle if that state is not plunged into the horrors of civil war."

Japan's new Protective Tariff is re-ducing her imports materially as com-pared with those of hast year, while her exports, however, flave gone on in-creasing. The growth of the Protec-ive Tariff idea during the last twenty-years has been remarkable.
